THE PENOBSCOT DEMOCRATIC "BOSS."

It is interesting to outsiders to notice the exchange with which Marcellus Emery continues to haul the Democracy of Penobscot County to and fro, hither and thither, backward and forward, in support of whatever scheme or nonsense he may have in view, and how supremely regardless he is of the possibility that any member of the party may object to being stultified and made ridiculous solely to indorse the vagaries of the erratic individual so graphically sketched in the article we copied from the Boston Journal yesterday.

It has been known for some time that Emery and a few of his intimates had arranged the programme for the party, and that he had determined to drag the whole Democracy of Penobscot into the soft money quagmire where he had stuck himself and his paper. He has gaspingly indorsed the Greenback, Mirick, of the Fifth District; has gone out of his way to assume special championship of the Greenback candidate, Ladd, in this District, who does not command the enthusiastic regard of the better portion of the Democracy of this vicinity; and now he has hoisted the name of Ben. Butler, as a new hero for the worship of the Democratic party. Emery's confidence in his absolute control of the Penobscot Democracy is without limit, and he deems it only necessary to command to be obeyed, even when he requires his supporters to fall down and do reverence to the "Despot of New Orleans," the champion of the Bonborn Contracts and the ch.a.c.of-ons wing of the Salary Grab raid.

It will be amusing to see Emery whipping in the Democracy of Penobscot to throw up their hats for Ben. Butler and Denis Kearney, as the champions of the "people's rights!" But Emery has no doubt that he can do it.

The caucus last evening was a part of his programme, and it was so thoroughly carried out that it duly nerved the baker's dozen present to carry out the farce. On the list of delegates he very shrewdly placed the names of a number of men known to be entirely hostile to his plans; but Emery thinks he knows a thing or two, and after "fixing things" all right, deems it a stroke of masterly strategy to commit the dissentients to his policy by connecting their names with it on a county ticket. Well, our neighbor has done worse for his consumption. In the meantime has Republican invitation in making his party platform has him and all his adherents "hoist with his own petard," and they will be stultified in spite of their "dispatch." But may be not put the too many straws on the patient camel's back at last?

THE VALUE OF BONDS.

[From the Kingston Journal.]

The decision of Salmon Chase's speech is that the purchasable power of bonds has been greatly enhanced by the advance made toward resumption of specie payments, while the prices of land, labor, and products have been influenced by the same cause. Mr. Chase either does not study the market reports of the value of bonds, or else he wilfully misrepresents upon that point. The resumption act went into effect in 1875. In that year the highest price of 6's of 1881, at the New York Stock Exchange, was 108½. They have never been as high since. They commenced to fall that year, and have been declining in price ever since, until at the present time they are worth but 107½. In 1875 they fell to 104½, in 1877 to 103½, and in August of this year to 102½. Mr. Chase's attempt to manufacture capital for his presidential boom will prove, the purchasing power of these bonds has fallen 5½ per cent. since the resumption act went into effect. And while 5's of the 'Funded Loan of 1881' are the choice of government bonds. They have shrunk in value as Mr. Chase's shirts, boots, and feather; and by May will not exchange for as many greenbacks as they would in 1865. The greenbacker feels the shrinkage as much as the farmer and laborer.

HOW THE BELIEF IS WORKED.

[From the Boston Journal.]

The pro-slavery ministers who were interested in public meetings by this time find it is one thing to make a treaty and another thing to secure its enforcement. The news which comes from the Austrian embassies into Bosnia is simply a recapitulation of war in terms, and the results of the experiments thus far have not been entirely satisfactory. Precisely what the officials and soldiers have combined to recognize and what have combined to resist the Austrians is not entirely plain, though something to some opposite they though something to some opposite they though something to some opposite they

NEW YORK CITY.

The Potter Committee.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12. The Potter Congressional Committee resumed its sessions to-day. Among the witnesses present was Hon. E. Anderson of Louisiana. At a quarter to one Mr. Potter called the Committee to order and announced that Mayor Cooper would not arrive till evening, and he deemed it improper to go on without them as Mr. Roberts was to be examined and he believed Mitchell desired to be present when his testimony is taken. Mr. Roberts, editor of the New Orleans Times and it is said he is the person who wrote the Columbus interview with Hayes. Butler being called, Stanley Matthews would be summoned to appear before the committee. Butler was served with a subpœna Saturday, but an important engagement at Newport would prevent his attending and whatever he intended to do he declared at no consequence to the committee. Butler inferred from this that Matthews did not mean to attend the summons of the committee.

Gen. Butler remarked that if Matthews or others were not in that he would not attend or obey the summons of the House of Representatives the sooner the house knew it the better for the peace and dignity, so that the members of both can be better employed. If the House has not the power to compel the attendance of a witness then the investigation is useless, as volunteer witnesses are always subject to suspicion. He did not know what construction to give to certain newspaper articles he had seen, but it they are true Matthews had been misled by newspaper reporters into the belief that it was to be his picnic and he went here here to tell as much as the committee pleases. He therefore moved that it be entered on the record that Matthews refused to appear before the committee and that the same be reported to the House for further action in the matter.

Potter remarked that he would entertain Butler's motion, but thought it better to act in the presence of Matthews and Garfield before voting on it he therefore adjourned the committee until 11 o'clock to-morrow. The committee then went into executive session.

Opinions to be Needed.

"A paper currency is a great curse at any people and a particular curse to the laborer of any country, for its depreciation always falls upon the laborer."

ANDREW JACKSON.

"Capital may be produced by industry accumulated by economy, but only jugglers will propose to create it by legerdemain tricks with paper."

THOMAS JEFFERSON.

"Paper emissions by the Government are of a nature so liable to abuse, I may say so certain to be abused, that the wisdom of the Government will be shown by never trusting itself with so subtle and dangerous a power."

ALEXANDER HAMILTON.

"It (paper money) tends to aggravate the inequality of fortunes; to make the rich richer and the poor poorer, to multiply nabobs and paupers, and to deepen and widen the gulf which separated Dives from Lazarus."

THOMAS H. BENTON.

"Irredeemable paper money converts the business of society into a mere lottery; and when the collapse comes, as come it must, it casts laborers out of employment, crushes manufacturers and merchants and ruins thousands of honest, industrious citizens."

JAMES BUCHANAN.

"It is safe to affirm that all experience in its use [paper currency] as a circulating medium has demonstrated the proposition that it cannot by any legislation, however stringent, be made a standard of value, or the just equivalent of gold and silver."

NATHAN CLIFFORD.

"A return to specie payments at the earliest possible period compatible with due regard to all interests concerned, should ever be kept in view. Fluctuations in the value of currency are always injurious, and to reduce them disturbances to the lowest possible point will always be a leading purpose in wise legislation. Convertibility, prompt and certain convertibility into coin is acknowledged to be the best and surest safeguard against them."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

"The loss which America has sustained since the peace, from the pestilential effects of irredeemable paper money, on the necessary confidence between man, by the necessary confidence in the public councils, on the industry and morals of the people and on the character of republican government, constitute an enormous debt against the States chargeable with this unauthorized measure, which must remain unsatisfied, or rather it is an accumulation of guilt which can be expiated no otherwise than by a voluntary sacrifice on the altar of justice of the powers which have been the instrument of it.

JAMES MADISON.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE. A very pleasant surprise was tendered Colonel A. W. Wright and his young and accomplished bride, of Skowhegan, at the Penobscot Exchange last evening. Between eight and nine o'clock, a few friends assembled at the hotel, and the congratulations being over, the Bangor Band rendered a fine serenade, after which Col. Smith, the popular manager of the house, invited the party to adjourn to the dining hall, where sumptuous refreshments were served. After all had partaken of the good things, Hon. Hosea Mayo Heath made a few pleasant remarks, and was followed by Hon. L. Porter. In a few but feeling words Col. Wright responded, and a note to the party dispersed, all wishing the happy couple a pleasant journey through life.

ARRIVED MONDAY. While in Portland recently we had the pleasure of examining some very handsome evidences of the artistic skill developed by Mr. Fred Shaw, of the Falmouth Hotel, in modeling in clay and plaster. Among them were a full-sized bust of the Venus of Milo, modeled in clay by Mr. Shaw and reproduced in plaster, and a small Clytie on which he was engaged at the time. The most striking work, however, was a life-sized bust of the artist's mother, Mrs. O. M. Shaw, which had been cast in plaster. In clay and then enameled and painted in plaster, in an life-like resemblance as to make it equal perhaps for bold sculpture to marble. The posing, treatment of drapery and head and the expression of the features are all remarkable, and reflect great credit upon the fingers of the artist, who has very rapidly developed his talent in this line. This work has only been exhibited privately to friends, but has received very high praise from critical judges, and is worthy of more public notice as a piece of art.

A PLEASANT REMINISCENCE. About fifty years ago a church was built in this city and finished with old style high back pews. One of our preachers worshiped with his family in this house and occupied one of the front pews in the broad isle. The son of the minister attended the meetings with the family, and as the custom then required the attendants to stand during prayer the boy found his mouth was just even with the pew rail, and when the prayer was long, getting weary, he would bite the rail with his teeth. Twenty years after the church was remodeled and the old pews sold to a new the first one building. The boy who had now become a man and a preacher, visited his old father from a far off city and was called to occupy the pulpit in the absence of the pastor. In this church he recognized the old pew, although it was somewhat altered, forty years having passed since he had entered it, still the marks could easily be seen. He is thankful that the truths to which he had then listened and the instructions received had made an impression on his memory that could not be effaced.

GRAND BALLET IN BREWER

Senator Manlits and Representative Powers Celebrated by a Fine Audience.

There was a grand meeting at the Town Hall in Brewer last evening, every seat being filled and extra chairs brought in to accommodate the large number present. The audience was made up of the best people in Brewer, and throughout the evening they evinced their cordial sympathy with the forcible arguments in favor of sound currency. The meeting was called to order by Col. Jasper Hutchings, who introduced Hon. Llewellyn Powers as the first speaker. Mr. Powers was handsomely received, and spoke with much ability and power, covering many of the principal points raised by the Greenbackers, and presenting the issue in a very clear light. He was followed by Senator Hamlin, who set forth the duty of honest citizens in a plain and convincing manner, and exposed the madness and folly of the attempt to deluge the land with a depreciated paper currency. Both speakers were listened to with the greatest interest, and their arguments for honest money were frequently interrupted by enthusiastic applause. The meeting was a grand success, and Brewer is preparing to give a good report at the polls.

After returning thanks for the compliment the chairman introduced Frank L. Patten, Esq., late President of the Newport Gymkhana Club, and that gentleman was received with cheers. He spoke half an hour, very earnestly and effectively, and was followed by Senator Hamlin, who was very cordially received. The Senator addressed the meeting in a very clear and convincing manner, and the approval of the audience was manifested by cheers and applause. At the conclusion three cheers were given in separate rounds for Conner, Hamlin, Powers, and the meeting adjourned with much enthusiasm. The good seed sown in Eden is already bearing fruit, and the friends of honest money will multiply from now till election.

The Democrats held a caucus, at which there was a small attendance, in City Hall last evening for the purpose of electing delegates to the District and County Conventions. The meeting was called to order by Mr. James Tobin, who nominated Mr. D. M. Howard as Chairman and the organization was perfected by the choice of Mr. C. E. Hill as Secretary.

The following committee was appointed by the chair to report a list of delegates: James Tobin, F. Cummings, Ara Warren, Daniel Sanborn, John Varney, Lemuel Nash and A. M. Roberts. They reported the following list of delegates to attend both Conventions, and the report was accepted:

Hastings Strickland, Daniel M. Howard, John Varney, D. F. Lancaster, Fred. M. Strickland, Levi Shorey, A. S. Fish, James F. Whidden, L. Nash, Daniel Shorey, John S. Hatch, James Tobin, M. A SKELETON IN THE CLOSET.

"Brandon Coyle! Are you mad?"

Before him stood Valdimir Desparde, his pallid face convulsed with passion, his dilated eyes flashing fire, his whole attitude that of a man beside himself with rage.

He had stolen up behind him noiselessly, and had overheard the whole of the conversation between Brandon Coyle and Lady Arielle Montjoie.

He had entered the room by the open window, and had crept up to the table where they sat, unseen by either, and had listened to every word that had been spoken.

He had heard Brandon Coyle declare his love for Lady Arielle, and had heard her confess that she loved him in return.

He had heard her tell how she had been betrothed to Valdimir Desparde by her father, Lord Montjoie, when she was but a child, and how she had refused to marry him, because she could not love him.

He had heard her tell how her father had died, leaving her penniless, and how Valdimir Desparde had come forward and offered to pay off the mortgage that was on the family estate, and restore it to her, if she would consent to marry him.

He had heard her tell how she had refused to do this, because she could not love him, and how Valdimir Desparde had declared that he would have her, even if he had to force her to marry him.

He had heard her tell how she had appealed to Brandon Coyle to help her, and how Brandon Coyle had promised to do so.

He had heard her tell how Brandon Coyle had declared that he loved her, and how he had promised to marry her.

He had heard her tell how Brandon Coyle had declared that he would kill Valdimir Desparde if he dared to molest
